Upon completion of this course the students should have the Knowledge and understanding in order to

- identify and analyse the social dimensions of age and their relation to other dimensions of identity such as gender, ethnicity and functionality
- analyse how age as a social position can intersect with other positions to create inequalities in health and welfare.

Skills and abilities
in order to

- discuss different approaches to support the participation and inclusion of older people in areas such as old age care
- use social dimensions of age, as well as gender, ethnicity and functionality as analytical lens to investigate the situation of older people in society
- apply an interdisciplinary perspective and an intersectional approach in thinking about age and ageing.

Judgement and approach
in order to

- recognise how attitudes towards ageing and older people in societies, social policies and by healthcare workers can have an impact on older people's lives
- recognise older people's rights, agency and autonomy and understand how these concepts relate to The National Fundamental Values in Elderly Care.

Contents

- age as a social construction
- cultural representations of age, gender and ethnicity
- ageist attitudes in welfare areas, particularly in healthcare
